

What is Online First?

Online First allows final versions of articles (full articles pending volumen assignment) to be published online before being included in an electronic version of the volume. Access to the full text of articles is available through the "Online First" section of the journal's website.

Advantages of Online First

Online First provides clear advantages to researchers and users of Management Letters / Cuadernos de Gestión content. It allows subscribers the possibility of accessing the most recent papers in the field. Authors also benefit by having the time between submission and publication of their articles considerably reduced. Online First publication allows an author's research to be published prior to final volumen assignment and therefore reaches its audience more quickly, enabling the article to achieve wider use and exposure, including citation opportunities.

How to cite an article published Online First

Papers published Online First are citable using the date of publication in the online version and the DOI number. Management Letters / Cuadernos de Gestión, as a member of "Cross Ref", assigns Digital Object Identifiers (DOI) to all its content for use in digital networks, and the metadata associated with this content is registered with the DOI Foundation (www.doi.org), which enhances the accessibility and dissemination of published works.

DOIs provide a permanent identification system for manuscripts published in the online environment, even after they have been assigned to the volume. Information such as volume, number and pagination are not assigned to online articles, as this is not known until the publication process has been completed, so these articles should be cited as follows:

Rodríguez, F.; Gómez, R.; Alonso, P.: "Article title", Journal, Prepublished Month, day, year.
DOI:10.5295/cdg.000000mm

Once the article has been assigned to a specific volume, it must be cited taking into account the information in the volume, but always keeping the DOI number:

Rodríguez, F.; Gómez, R.; Alonso, P. (year): "Article title", Journal, Vol., No., p. xx-xx. DOI:
10.5295/cdg.000000mm

Each article DOI is registered in CrossRef (www.crossref.org), allowing permanent access to each article and providing editors with the possibility to link their references to articles when they are cited.