AURKEZPENA

Having a good command of English has gained in importance in academia and research environments, since English is nowadays often needed for writing research papers, giving oral presentations at conferences, communicating with international colleagues, etc. This course addresses this need and helps participants become familiar with the vocabulary, discourse structures and conventions used in research contexts.

ZURE BILA GABILTZA

This course has been designed for students who have successfully completed the course "Effective Research Communication". You will have the opportunity to explore and practice further the linguistic aspects of research communication, to an advanced level. You will improve your abstract writing skills, analyse the style and format of academic papers, practice how to answer adequately to reviewers' comments and how to write a review, as well how to prepare a poster presentation. The course is very practical and hands-on.

IRTEERA PROFESIONALAK

If you are in your final year of your studies and are interested in a career in research, if you would like to do a Masters or a PhD course abroad, or if you are already a researcher but would like to improve your skills to write and talk confidently about your subject, this course may help you.
