THE WORLD' LARGEST INTERNET COMPANY

Amazon.com is the world's largest Internet company. It started out as an online bookstore in the mid-1990s and grew gradually over the years. Today Amazon sells almost everything from CDs and DVDs to sportswear and electrical appliances, and it also produces its own tablets and e-readers.

Amazon.com was founded by Jeff Bezos in 1994. It first operated out of a small garage in Washington State and in only a year, Amazon offered thousands of books. People could not only buy books from an online catalogue but also write their own opinions about them.

Time went on and Amazon.com grew bigger. In 2007, it surprised the electronics world with a revolutionary eBook reader, the Kindle, which today dominates the market. In 2011, a tablet computer followed, the Amazon Fire. In the following years, it bought out many of its rivals, and today it cooperates with other companies, letting them sell their products via the Amazon website.

Today, Amazon offers its services all over the world. It operates its own websites in the UK, Germany, and Australia, as well as many South American and Asian countries. Amazon.com serves about 20 million customers every day, and its annual income is over 34 billion dollars.

There are a number of reasons for Amazon's success. One of them is the company founder, Jeff Bezos, TIME magazine's "Man of the Year" of 1999. He is a visionary, an ambitious businessman who is not afraid of taking risks. Amazon's website tries to personalize the buying experience for its customers: it always knows what you want and what you are interested in.
