- 16 PhD supervision plus 2 under supervision
- 30 Master thesis and bachelor thesis supervised
- 6 Post-doctoral students supervision
- 225 communications in Research International Meetings
- 80 invited conferences
- Principal Investigator of de 70 National research projects 2 Europeans and 8 International
- 7 years in research in international labs
- In the last 10 years administrated 190 months of research contracts.
- Life Member of Clare Hall College Cambridge (UK) 2012-present
- Professor at the Bordeaux University from The Initiative of Excellence 2020

Advisory committee:

- Member of the Editorial Board the journal Translational Vision Science and Technology (TVST) 2019- present
- Member of the Committee of Evaluation of Transference (ANECA) 2019- present
- Member of the European Evaluating Committee of the V Frame Program of the EU (2008).
- Member of the Spanish Agency for Evaluation and Qualify Professors for the Spanish Universities, Health area (ANECA) 2008-2010. Reviewer until present.
- Reviewer of the National Agency of Research Grants Evaluation (ANEP) 1992- present

- Reviewer of the National Committee grants from National Health Research (FISS) 1995-present.
- Reviewer of the Portuguese Agency for Science. 2015-present.

Main Awards and Honors:

2004: First Prize of the International Research Award for Research in New Technologies and Biomedicine and New technologies ONCE (Spanish Foundation for Blind Persons)

2004: The Glaucoma Foundation (TGF) Grant to Elena Vecino) (USA)

2005: First Price of the Research grants for researching in Retinosis Pigmentaria FUNDALUCE (Foundation Fighting Blindness).

2011: Price to the best basic research in Ophthalmology Society of Ophthalmology of the North

2015: Alcon Foundation price to the Excellence Group in Glaucoma Research

2020: Scientific American Journal best scientific photography

Section B. SUMMARY OF THE CURRICULUM

Elena Vecino (ORCID ID: 0000-0002-1672-5132) obtained her BSc and PhD in Biology from the University of Salamanca (1986 and 1989, respectively), and a second PhD in the field of vision from the University of Lund (Sweden, 1996). She has collaborated with several European and American Universities. She became a Full Professor of Cell Biology at the University of Basque Country in 2004, where she leads a multidisciplinary group in experimental Neuro-Ophthalmo-Biology (www.ehu.es/GOBE), and from 2012, she is a Fellow of Clare Hall, Cambridge (UK). She has published more than 120 peer reviewed papers, directed 15 PhD theses, half of whom were Ophthalmologists, and more than 20 Master's Thesis. Is referee of 10 international research journals and member of the editorial board of the Translational Journal (TVST). She has been Evaluator of European Grants and member of national evaluating agencies (ANEPE; ANECA). She has held more than 80 national and international grants, two of them European, and she has collaborated with several pharmaceutical companies in developing/improving treatments for Glaucoma. The main interests of her research are retinal neuroprotection and the identification of biomarkers in the tear to characterize ocular pathologies. She has developed several animal models of glaucoma that are now used globally to study this pathology. She has been elected by the Univ. of Bordeaux from the Initiative of Excellence (2020) and by the Univ. of Cambridge (UK) Clare Hall College Brain Repair Centre to study the regeneration of the visual nervous system (2012). She has participated in several preclinical trials, including that to ratify the first gene therapy for Retinosis Pigmentaria (in collaboration with Dr Aguirre at U. Penn, USA), and her research has received several prizes from International organizations, including the American Glaucoma Foundation (2004), the First International Prize of ONCE Foundation (2005) and the Alcon Foundation (Prize for Excellence in Glaucoma Research, 2015). She currently holds several grants from pharmaceutical and biotech companies to identify tear biomarkers for neurological and eye diseases, that are at present in Phase III clinical trial. In addition, Elena Vecino is Bachelor of Fine Arts (2014) with the specialization in sculpture. She has lectured on art and science at the Guggenheim Museum of Bilbao, and held several exhibitions on scientific photography and win several Art prices like from: the Spanish Ophthalmology Society (SEO) and Neurosciences Society (SENC) and The Scientific American Journal.
